

To whom it may concern - I find it quite funny that this is even an issue. I have had my XM Radio for over 6 months now and don't think I will ever go back to AM/FM. The choice of channels and digital signal are far superior to anything else previously available. The recent addition of localized Weather and Traffic has been just another perk of my XM Radio. On several occasions I have heard of traffic problems and been able to avoid long delays because of the traffic reports. XM has proven that it has a market out there and this frightens the 'big' AM/FM broadcasters, but instead of improving there offerings to consumers they instead look for a way to stop there competition? I find this quite humorous and am glad to see XM standing up for there right to bring customers the services that they want.

--Devin R. Smith